An Annotated Bibliography Of
United States Marine Corps Artillery

Compiled By
Ralph W. Donnelly

Introduction

The Marine Corps, while long considered an infantry unit, has been frequently associated with field artillery during its existence. Major Samuel Nicholas' battalion of Continental Marines, comprising the companies of Captains Andrew Porter, Robert Mullens, and Benjamin Deane, served for a time during 1777 as artillery in Washington's army. The small size of the Corps and its preoccupation with duty on board ship made artillery service a matter of just intellectual curiosity for some years.

The potential of artillery in amphibious landings was recognized by Commandant Archibald Henderson as long ago as 17 November 1853 when he wrote to the Secretary of the Navy, "The Artillery drill, especially that of Light Artillery, would be highly beneficial in case of landing a force in a foreign country." In implementation of his thinking, Commandant Henderson sent First Lieutenant Israel Greene (later of John Brown fame) to West Point during the summer of 1857 to receive training in artillery for the purpose of introducing it into the Marine Corps. The Commandant then secured a battery of heavy and light guns to be used at Headquarters for instruction in artillery.

This new role for Marines was reflected in Navy General Order of 7 June 1859 which provided, in part, that:

...As occasions may arise when it may become necessary to employ Marines at the great guns, they shall be instructed as full guns' crews by their own officers, and may be assigned as parts of ordinary guns' crews under other officers of division, but the Commanding Officer will be careful not so to assign Marines except in cases of necessity....

Artillery in the Marine Corps lay dormant for some years although it was not forgotten. Marine Corps General Order #1 of 1 May 1891 established a "School of Instruction" whose curriculum included gunnery instruction.

When a battalion of Marines was organized for service in the Spanish-American War, one of the six companies (Company F, Captain S. H. Harrington) was organized as an artillery unit and equipped with four 3-inch rapid fire guns. Included in Colonel Robert L. Meade's force of Marines who participated in the capture of Tientsin, China, in July 1900, was Captain Ben H. Fuller's artillery company armed with three 3-inch rapid-fire guns and three Colt automatic guns.

With the turn of the century and the close of the Spanish-American War, the United States found itself with a colonial empire and was classified as a world power. An outgrowth of this new world position was the advanced base theory for the Marine Corps. The Corps organized an Advanced Base Battalion in August 1911 at Philadelphia to meet this new responsibility. An artillery company (Company G) to handle 3-inch field pieces was included in the battalion. A three-company artillery battalion equipped with 3-inch field guns was organized on 25 April 1914 and stationed at Vera Cruz during the landing operations there. The use of Marine artillery in combat was initiated by Major Robert H. Dunlap at La Trencheras, Dominican Republic, on 27 June 1916.

The 10,000-man Corps of 1916 expanded to almost 75,000 by the end of World War I in 1918, and, for the first time, a full regiment of field artillery was organized within the Corps - the 11th Regiment on 3 January 1918. This action was followed on 15 January 1918 by the re-designation of the Mobile Artillery Force to the 10th Regiment (Artillery).

World War II brought a large increase in the size of the Marine Corps to a peak strength of 485,000 with six combat divisions in the field. Divisional artillery was no longer sufficient to meet the needs of Marines on shore, and the larger guns of corps artillery became necessary. The first unit, the 155mm Howitzer Battalion Detachment, was activated on 23 October 1942 at Camp Elliott, California. While Marine artillery had been armed, in part, with the French 155mm G.P.F. after World War I, its function had been divisional rather than corps.

The periodical literature on Marine Corps artillery reflects this growing importance in the quantity of articles from the World War II era to date. The technical manuals have been basically Army while the number of books has been negligible. The entries in this bibliography are primarily those published in Marine Corps publications. Some few entries refer to other publications, but are either Marine Corps-oriented or are written by Marine Corps personnel.

Several features have been included in this bibliography to make it more useful for research purposes. These included a brief section on manuscript material, considerable periodical references to the various early artillery units, and references to published photographs.

While the main area of concentration has been on field artillery, material on antiaircraft defense of the World War II era and today's tactical rockets and missiles has been included. Not all the available information on mortars has been included, but the artillery angle has been the deciding criteria. Naval gunfire and ships' guns have been left out as not within the scope of this bibliography. Bracketed references to "HAF, Quantico" indicate item may be found by quoted number in the Historical Amphibious File, James C. Breckinridge Library, Quantico, Va.

1. Joseph E. Alexander. "Introducing Mobile Artillery." Walla Walla, v. 9, no. 21 (24 Oct 1936), pp. 16-17, 19.

2. LtCol Nels E. Anderson, USMC. "Force Artillery." Marine Corps Gazette, v. 45, no. 10 (Oct 1961), pp. 26-28.

A look at the present artillery available to the Fleet Marine Forces and at new developments coming up soon.

3. 1stSgt William Anderson, USMC. "Development of Anti-Aircraft Fire Control in the Marine Corps." Marine Corps Gazette, v. 11, no. 3 (Sep 1926), pp. 185-187.

Discusses plotting board designed by 1stLt Charles J. Lohmiller and the board designed by Capt DeWitt Peck which replaced it.

4. Capt W. J. Ankley, Inf, USA. "Don't Scrap the 75s!" Marine Corps Gazette, v. 41, no. 1 (Jan 1957), pp. 45-47.

Asks to put the 75mm recoilless rifles in the infantry battalions until new highly mobile weapons are obtained.

5. LtCol Henry Aplington, II, USMC. "Mortars & Smoke." Marine Corps Gazette, v. 33, no. 9 (Sep 1949), pp. 55-59.

Considers smoke a major factor in reduction of casualties and the seizure of hostile positions and says Marine Corps 4.2-inch chemical mortar is the best smoke weapon we've developed.

6. Capt John T. Archer, USMC. "Mortar Platoon." Marine Corps Gazette, v. 51, no. 5 (May 1967), pp. 50-52.

The chief ingredients of a good 81mm mortar platoon are sweat, practice, and pride. Gives experience in Vietnam as mortar platoon commander, 2/7.

7. Capt Edward A. Bailey, USMC. "Fire Mission Rockets." Marine Corps Gazette, v. 36, no. 9 (Sep 1952), pp. 16-20. illus.

Gives story of the 4.5-inch rocket in Korea as fired by the 4.5-inch Rocket Battalion, FMF.

8. Sgt Manly Banister, USMCR. "Training for Base Defense: the Artillery Battalion at New River." Marine Corps Gazette, v. 27, no. 6 (Oct 1943), pp. 36-38. illus.

9. LtCol G. M. Barnes, Ord., USA. "Our Superior Modernized 75's." Marine Corps Gazette, v. 24, no. 4 (Nov 1940), pp. 31-38. illus. (Courtesy of Scientific American, January 1940.).

Reports on reconstruction of our large stocks of wartime 75mm guns to modernize them with longer range, high elevation, and wide traverse.

10. Lt William A. Barnes, Jr., USMC. "Sound Ranging." Field Artillery Journal, v. 34, no. 6 (Jun 1944), pp. 358-359.

A procedure to meet the almost complete lack of observation by artillery in the jungle.

11. Sgt Frank Beardsley, USMC. "Fire for Effect." Leatherneck, v. 49, no. 5 (May 1966), pp. 38-43. illus.

F2/12 in Vietnam in support of Marine infantry.

12. Patrick S. Bilks. "Mode of Ignition Heavy Artillery: Development of the Mode of Ignition in Heavy Artillery." Walla Walla, v. 9, no. 26 (28 Nov 1936), pp. 13-15. sketch.

Reviews linstocks, tubes, portfire, percussion, etc.

13. Capt James R. Blackwell, USMC. "Artillery Course At Quantico." Field Artillery Journal, v. 33, no. 7 (Jul 1943), pp. 538-539.

Reviews the course outline and describes end product as basically trained officers in the fundamentals of field artillery and capable of performing duties as battery officers in Marine Corps field artillery units.

14. Vern Blasdell and Earl Smith. "Check-out On Missiles." Leatherneck, v. 41, no. 1 (Jan 1958), pp. 22-27, 85. illus.

Reviews missiles of the day, including four basic types: SSM, AAM, SAM, and ASM, and alerts Marines to expect more utilization of missiles.

15. Capt Henry J. Blossy, USMCR. "The Climb Toward Perfection." Field Artillery Journal, v. 38, no. 5 (Sep-Oct 1948), pp. 227-230.

The development of Marine Corps antiaircraft artillery in World War II.

16. Capt Bernard C. Borning, FA, USA. "Artillery on Offshore Islands." Marine Corps Gazette, v. 30, no. 5 (May 1946), pp. 45-46.

Discusses support of amphibious landings with artillery based on offshore islands, gives as examples, Kerama Retto islands, Okinawa, and Ie Shima. Suggests it is wise for field artillerymen to continue thinking in amphibious terms.

17. 1stLt Alpha L. Bowser, Jr., USMC. "Light Artillery Support in Landing Operations." Marine Corps Gazette, v. 22, no. 2 (Jun 1938), pp. 22-25, 74. sketches.

Discusses direct support by the 75mm Pack Howitzer Battalion of Marine infantry and the use of Artillery Liaison Officers and their Liaison Sections.

18. MSgt Fred G. Braitsch, Jr., USMC. "Bunker Busters." Leatherneck, v. 35, no. 5 (May 1952), pp. 16-21. illus.

Account, chiefly pictorial, of the use of 4.5-inch rocket batteries in support of Marine operations in Korea.

19. MSgt Fred G. Braitsch, Jr., USMC. "Fire Mission." Leatherneck, v. 35, no. 7 (Jul 1952), pp. 22-27. illus.

20. 2dLt Gary E. Carlson, USMC. "Rocket Tip." Marine Corps Gazette, v. 49, no. 6 (Jun 1965), p. 56.

Believes the 3.5-inch rocket capable of use as an explosive in anti-tank defense and tells how.

21. John F. Casey, Jr. "An Artillery Forward Observer on Guadalcanal." Field Artillery Journal, v. 33, no. 8 (Aug 1943), pp. 563-568.

22. John F. Casey, Jr. "A Firing Battery on Guadalcanal." Field Artillery Journal, v. 33, no. 10 (Oct 1943), pp. 740-744.

23. Maj Bevan G. Cass, USMC. "The Monster." Marine Corps Gazette, v. 40, no. 1 (Jan 1956), pp. 32-35. illus.

Reviews the self-propelled 155mm gun, T-97, as a replacement for the towed 155mm gun, M-2.

24. 1stLt Charles A. Chapin, USMC, and 1stLt Henry W. Oliver, USMCR. "New Time Fire Techniques." Field Artillery Journal, v. 34, no. 10 (Oct 1944), pp. 675-677.

The Marine Corps adopted the methods described here. A treatment of fuze settings.

25. 1stLt Leon Cohan, USMC. "Let's Keep 81mm Mortar." Marine Corps Gazette, v. 45, no. 11 (Nov 1961), p. 66.

A communication to the "Observation Post." Agrees the 81mm mortar is not doing its job but blames it on failure to train Marines to use it.

26. 1stLt Leon Cohan, USMC. "Somebody Forgot the 81mm Man on The FSC Candidates' List." Marine Corps Gazette, v. 47, no. 4 (Apr 1963), p. 45.

A communication to the "Observation Post." Supports the 81mm Platoon commander for Fire Support Coordinator (FSC) of an infantry battalion as equally qualified as the artillery liaison officer.

27. Capt Leon Cohan, USMC. "Just What's So Special On Howtar." Marine Corps Gazette, v. 48, no. 3 (Mar 1964), p. 54.

Cannot determine what special characteristics the Howtar possesses that make it superior to the four-deuce (4.2). Feels we lost more than we've gained.

28. Maj Dwain A. Colby, USMC, and Maj Barry N. Bittner, USMC. "Recon's Artillery." Marine Corps Gazette, v. 51, no. 1 (Jan 1967), pp. 49-51.

Reports on how reconnaissance units and supporting artillery cooperate effectively in Vietnam. Whole operations resulting in appreciable destruction of enemy forces have been executed by recon, backed with massive supporting arms.

29. Kenneth W. Condit. "Marine Artillery in Korea." Marine Corps Gazette, v. 36, no. 11 (Nov 1952), pp. 26-33, illus.

30. Sgt John Conner, USMC. "Cannoneers Post!" Leatherneck, v. 27, no. 13 (Dec 1944), pp. 40-44. illus.

The story of Marine artillery during World War II. Mentions Guadalcanal, Piva Forks, Cape Gloucester, and other examples.

31. Sgt John Conner, USMC. "Guns Before Ormoc." Leatherneck, v. 28, no. 5 (May 1945), pp. 25-27. illus.

V Amphibious Corps artillery in the Philippines, World War II (Leyte Campaign).

32. 1stLt Raymond F. Crist, Jr., USMC. "Unobserved Fire Chart." Marine Corps Gazette, v. 19, no. 3 (Aug 1935), p. 30.

Discusses need for accurate maps for artillery. Suggests aerial photographic mapping and its calibration with known distances as a basis for compiling a fire chart.

33. Maj Alfred J. Croft, USMC. "Artillery vs Viet Cong No Match." Marine Corps Gazette, v. 47, no. 1 (Jan 1963), p. 59.

Support for Leach and O'Shea's "Artillery vs Guerrillas." Published as a communication to the "Observation Post."

34. LtCol Manly L. Curry, USMC. "Vertical Control in the Jungles." Field Artillery Journal, v. 34, no. 9 (Sep 1944), p. 596.

35. LtCol Manly L. Curry, USMC. "A Jungle Orientation Problem." Field Artillery Journal, v. 34, no. 9 (Sep 1944), p. 663.

A letter contribution to "Not in the Book" section.

36. LtCol Manly L. Curry, USMC. "A Plea for Simplification." Field Artillery Journal, v. 34, no. 10 (Oct 1944), p. 689.

Asks for map contours to be in yards instead of feet as more practical for artillery.

37. LtCol Manly L. Curry, USMC. "Growl From A Diehard." Field Artillery Journal, v. 35, no. 2 (Feb 1945), pp. 116-117.

38. MSgt Paul C. Curtis, USMC. "Jackson [Miss.] Reservists." Leatherneck, v. 42, no. 2 (Feb 1959), pp. 34-39, 94. illus.

2d 105mm Howitzer Battery.

39. Maj Henry C. Davis, USMC. "Mobile Artillery in Advance Bases." United States Naval Institute Proceedings, v. 38, no. 4, whole number 144 (Dec 1912), pp. 1467-1472.

Makes a plea that since Advance Base is to be mobile, the artillery used must also be mobile. Suggests use of tractor for moving guns as large as 5-inch. Permanent artillery defense must have mobile artillery for its defense as well as infantry.

40. Capt William J. Davis, USMC. "Fire for Effect!" Marine Corps Gazette, v. 38, no. 7 (Jul 1954), pp. 16-21. illus.

In defense of the 60mm and 81mm mortars as weapons integral to infantry units, supported by incidents from the Reservoir operation.

41. Maj Carl F. Dawson, USMC. "Why Not Amphibious Artillery?" Marine Corps Gazette, v. 49, no. 7 (Jul 1965), pp. 29-31.

Objects to "whale-boat techniques" in getting our artillery ashore. Urges self-propelled amphibian artillery for the Regular Corps.

42. Capt Rupert R. Deese, USMC. "The Anti-Aircraft Machine Gun." Marine Corps Gazette, v. 20, no. 1 (Feb 1936), pp. 15, 39.

Commentary on the 1st Marine Division Anti-Tank Company in Korea with emphasis on the Inchon-Seoul operation.

44. Capt Pedro A. del Valle, USMC. "Marine Corps Artillery." Marine Corps Gazette, v. 5, no. 10 (Dec 1920), pp. 353-355.

Supports artillery as a life saver for Marine infantry and necessary for the Corps to function independently from the Army.

45. BGen Pedro A. del Valle, USMC. "Marine Field Artillery on Guadalcanal." Field Artillery Journal, v. 33, no. 10 (Oct 1943), pp. 722-733.
46. BGen Pedro A. del Valle, USMC. "Dual functions in the Solomons." Coast Artillery Journal, v. 87, no. 1 (Jan-Feb 1944), pp. 4-8.
47. BGen Pedro A. del Valle, USMC. "Marine Artillery in Guadalcanal." Marine Corps Gazette, Pt. I, v. 27, no. 7, (Nov 1943), pp. 9-13; Pt. II, v. 28, no. 1 (Jan 1944), pp. 27-30; and Pt. III, v. 28, no. 2 (Feb 1944), pp. 39-43. illus., and map.

The story of the 11th Marines (Artillery).

48. BGen Pedro A. del Valle, USMC, and Col John A. Bemis, USMC. "Sea Island Serenade: The Recapture of Guam." Field Artillery Journal, v. 34, no. 12 (Dec 1944), pp. 803-806.

50. Sgt George Doying, USMC. "The Buck Rogers Men." Leatherneck, v. 28, no. 4 (Apr 1945), pp. 27-29. illus.

Rocket launchers on Saipan and Tinian, World War II.

51. TSgt J. P. Driver, USMC. "An Idea on Cannister." Marine Corps Gazette, v. 40, no. 7 (Jul 1956), p. 53.

Advocated a cannister-type ammunition for infantry companies as particularly useful in night ambushes and mass attacks. Suggests using the 3.5-inch rocket launcher.

52. TSgt J. P. Driver, USMC. "More Punch for the 60mm." Marine Corps Gazette, v. 40, no. 4 (Apr 1956), p. 43.

Suggests an oversize incendiary projectile for the 60mm mortar. The 60mm could and should be the infantry company commander's artillery.

53. MSgt J. P. Driver, USMC. "Mortars Needed For Companies." Marine Corps Gazette, v. 50, no. 8 (Aug 1966), p. 61.

"Opinion" section. Seems to favor 60mm.

54. 2dLt David J. Dunn, USMC. "Another Use for the 3.5." Marine Corps Gazette, v. 40, no. 9 (Sep 1956), pp. 32-33. illus.

Advocates fragmentation projectile for the 3.5-inch rocket launcher to give an effective air burst over the heads of attacking infantry.

55. 1stLt David J. Dunn, USMC. "Missiles Aren't Mysterious." Marine Corps Gazette, v. 43, no. 2 (Feb 1959), pp. 52-56. illus.

56. Col Edward M. Edmonson, FA, USA. "Corps Artillery of the Army in Combat." Marine Corps Gazette, Pt. 1, v. 29, no. 3, (Mar 1945), pp. 31-35; Pt. 2, v. 29, no. 4 (Apr 1945), pp. 45-48; Pt. 3, v. 29, no. 5 (May 1945), pp. 48-51; Pt. 4, v. 29, no. 6 (Jun 1945), pp. 31-34.

Describes in detail the organization and operation of Corps Artillery in combat, concerns US Army procedure, and is presented as an authoritative discussion for Marine artillery officers. Certain differences with Marine Corps practice are noted as well as similarities.

57. Maj Earl H. Ellis, USMC. "Bush Brigades." Marine Corps Gazette, v. 6, no. 1 (Mar 1921), pp. 1-15.

An account of the Marines in the Caribbean area, 1915-1919. Discussion of administrative problems is emphasized. Advocates use of artillery in large scale city uprisings.

58. Sgt Edward J. Evans, USMC. "Artillery Report." Leatherneck, v. 32, no. 2 (Feb 1949), pp. 7-11. illus.

Popular brief history of the development of field artillery.

59. MSgt Edward J. Evans, USMC. "Time on Target - 177 years." Marine Corps Gazette, v. 38, no. 2 (Feb 1954), pp. 36-39. illus.

Brief history of Marine Corps artillery, 1777-1945.

60. LtCol Richard A. Evans, USMC. "Infantry on Peleliu." Marine Corps Gazette, v. 29, no. 1 (Jan 1945), pp. 50-55. illus.

Operating in an area that was only about 200 yards square, an entire 155mm howitzer battalion combined tactics of the Civil War with World War I methods, then served as infantry.

61. LtCol Richard A. Evans, USMC. "Artillery On 'Nothing Atoll.'" Field Artillery Journal, v. 35, no. 1 (Jan 1945), pp. 6-10.

62. LtCol Gilbert W. Ferguson, USMC. "Guns at Da Nang." Marine Corps Gazette, v. 50, no. 2 (Feb 1966), pp. 27-31.

The commander of an artillery group in Vietnam during the first days of fighting shares his experiences, then draws a conclusion.

63. Maj Gilbert W. Ferguson, USMC. "Cannoneers, Hop To!" Marine Corps Gazette, v. 45, no. 12 (Dec 1961), p. 54.

Overall changes under "M" series of T/O.

64. 1stLt Paul A. Fitzgerald, USMCR (AO). "Anti-Aircraft Defense." Leatherneck, v. 23, no. 1 (Jan 1940), pp. 14-18. illus.

A brief non-technical description of the new anti-aircraft battalions and the equipment they operate.

65. Col Marvin H. Floom, USMC. "Field Artillery for the Infantry." Marine Corps Gazette, v. 29, no. 9 (Sep 1945), p. 22.

Reports favorably on the new 57mm and 75mm recoilless rifles as adding to American superior firepower.

66. FMF Organization and Composition Board. "Report: Fire Support." Marine Corps Gazette, v. 41, no. 6 (Jun 1957), pp. 8-12.

Describes the fire support concept, organization, and weapons under new "M" T/Os, both for regiments and force artillery.

67. LtCol Ernest P. Foley, USMC. "Artillery Uses for the Board, Plotting, M-10." Field Artillery Journal, v. 37, no. 3 (May-Jun 1947), pp. 160-165.
68. MSgt Herb Freeman, USMC. "Missiles in Reserve." Leatherneck, v. 50, no. 7 (Jul 1967), pp. 32-37. illus.
4th LAAM Battalion (Reserve) and the Marine Air Reserve Missile Training Detachment at Twentynine Palms, Calif.
69. MSgt Herb Freeman, USMC. "Artillery Plateau." Leatherneck, v. 50, no. 3 (Mar 1967), pp. 38-43. illus.
12th Marines and other artillery units emplaced at Camp J. J. Carroll, formerly Artillery Plateau, just eight miles south of the DMZ.
70. MSgt Robert T. Fugate, USMC. "Miami Reservists." Leatherneck, v. 38, no. 5 (May 1955), pp. 44-50.
2d 155mm Gun Battalion.
71. Robert C. Gildart. "Guadalcanal's Artillery." Field Artillery Journal, v. 33, no. 10 (Oct 1943), pp. 734-739.
72. B. S. Gillespie and F. Hawthorne, Jr. "Operation Devil Dog." Antiaircraft Journal, v. 96, no. 2 (Mar-Apr 1953), pp. 19-20.
73. LtCol Robert Ginsburg, USA. "M1le. 75 Takes Out Her Papers." Leatherneck, v. 24, no. 1 (Jan 1941), pp. 14-16. illus.
Describes the first French 75mm and the innovations it introduced, the secrecy which protected its manufacture, and the problems encountered in having it manufactured at the Rock Island Arsenal.
74. Maj Joseph P. Goodson, USMC. "Fire the Barrage." Marine Corps Gazette, v. 48, no. 3 (Mar 1964), pp. 27-29.
Plain talk from an artilleryman to infantry company commanders on how to use the barrage for maximum effect.

75. Sgt Charles E. Gore, USMC. "Possibilities of the Antitank Rocket." Marine Corps Gazette, v. 35, no. 7 (Jul 1951), pp. 38-41.

Promotes 7.2-inch "bazooka" rocket as antitank weapon of the future. Cites success of the 3.5-inch rocket launcher against Russian-made T-34.

A recommendation for FSCCs is that the Marine Corps is light on artillery, using air and naval gunfire to make up the difference. What we are really talking about is an FDC (Fire Direction Center) whose job is not to restrict, to delay, or to coordinate, but to plan jointly to place fires where the supported unit wants them.

275. LtCol John J. Wade, Jr., USMC. "Arty Rockets to Kill Armor." Marine Corps Gazette, v. 39, no. 5 (May 1955), pp. 52-57. illus.

276. Maj John J. Wade, Jr., USMC. "Fire Support Coordination in Base Defense." Marine Corps Gazette, v. 33, no. 7 (Jul 1949), pp. 56-59. chart.

FSCC can be readily adapted to the requirements of the base command. Its physical equipment constitutes a nerve center second to none in the landing force, one easily capable of linking various supporting arms involved in base defense.

277. 2dLt Robert E. Walton, USMC. "Guided Missiles." Marine Corps Gazette, v. 32, no. 8 (Aug 1948), pp. 44-47.

Discusses guided missiles as an extremely accurate supplement to long range artillery. Reviews characteristics of military rockets and warns against temptation to dismiss them as not worth trouble and expense they involve.

278. BGen William R. Wendt, USMC (Ret.). "Antimissile Defense of a Port." Marine Corps Gazette, v. 43, no. 2 (Feb 1959), pp. 36-41. illus.

Reviews the defense of the Port of Antwerp in World War II against flying bombs by a force including 22,000 British, Polish, and American antimissile artillerymen. No direct Marine Corps application; information only.

1959 Prize Essay. Calls for better aircraft and better coordination in close air support systems, better use of naval gunfire, particularly the new guided missile ships, the creation of Force Artillery, the improvement of and making of an operational unit of our present rockets.

283. LtCol Paul E. Wilson, USMC. "Artillery Quiz." Marine Corps Gazette, v. 50, no. 12 (Dec 1966), pp. 32-36.

Reports his findings on a questionnaire to determine Marine Corps artillery needs. Found greatest point of agreement was to get rid of the Howtar. Favored replacement for Howtar was the 105mm Howitzer, towed. One of most controversial topics was place of self-propelled artillery in the Corps. Stimulating and thought provoking.

284. LtCol Paul E. Wilson, USMC. "FSC [Fire Support Coordination]: Coordination, Control or Confusion?" Marine Corps Gazette, v. 51, no. 12 (Dec 1967), pp. 43-48.

Suggests various changes in present organization and procedures which he feels will help do away with confusion and place emphasis on coordination and control.

PICTURES

While many of the articles in this bibliography are illustrated, a check of the basic Marine Corps-oriented periodicals disclosed various pictures having artillery connotations which were printed separate and apart from any article. Since pictures are so descriptive of uniforms and equipment of a particular time frame, a number are listed as a section of this bibliography. The Marine Corps Combat Pictorial Branch (Code AO3P) offers a useful source for extensive additional pictorial material. Motion pictures and other visual training aids used within the Marine Corps should also be consulted for an "in depth" study.
